Governor Will Decide Procedure Before Committee Meeting This Month

K L A N ASKS FOR TALK
Smith Will Talk at 15 Cities
While on National Campaign Tour

BY W. W. CHAPLIN
New York.—(AP)—Governor Alfred
E. Smith was in New York Monday for some informal conferences at which he will thrash out the details of his campaign for the presidency with a few close friends.

The first meeting of the national committee is not until July 11, but it is generally believed that before that time the governor will have decided exactly what course he will follow and will merely inform the committee of his decision.

Those close to the governor say that he intends to decide all important matters relative to the campaign himself, and that the national committee will follow his directions rather than act in an advisory capacity.

He has already decided to limit his two months campaign to about 15 speeches in various parts of the country. They will all be broadcast, and there will be no back platform talks to station crowds as the campaign train moves from one chosen city to another.

Coming to West
There will probably be one speech in this city, one in New Jersey, three in New England, one each in Detroit, St. Louis and Denver, and the rest in the border states with one possible appearance in a west coast city.

His supporters feel that the governor has the gift of making people who have never seen him and who know nothing of his political policies except in relation to one or two outstanding matters, "think they know him."

His point to the thousands of telegrams and letters which have come in since the nomination, hundreds of which call the governor "Al" and address him in terms of familiarity.

The governor's first speech since his nomination will be at the Tammany hall annual Fourth of July celebration.

Advertisements in New York newspapers announce that "patriotic speeches" will be delivered by the governor and Senators Copeland and Vandergriff. "All citizens of the United States and lovers of Americanism are cordially invited to the advertisement says. The speeches are to be broadcast."

KLAN WANTS TALK
The Ku Klux Klan has invited the governor to address a gathering of 75,000 members in Queens on the eve of Independence day.

Smith circles were much interested
Monday in the appeal of Josephus
P. Kamp, who has been elected to succeed Governor Smith, but to stand in congress like a stone wall against any recommendation that as president would make to lift the prohibition enforcement

the bacon was brought home by Senator Smith. When the delegates arrived at Albany they stopped at the home of the governor and at a dinner given by the governor and his family. The delegates were then taken to the home of George W. Olvany, head of Tammany, where a statement on arrival from Houston predicting that capital and labor would aid Smith and that election would help industry.

CHICAGO MAN HOPES TO REDUCE BUTTER PRICES
Chicago.—(AP)—As a move intended to reduce the retail price of butter to an average of 2 cents each pound, plan calling for the organization of cooperative cream buying associations has been proposed to the butter manufacturers of the country by Wilson S. Moore, of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, it was announced Monday.

The leading manufacturers, it was said, are considering the proposals which would bring the establishment of a centralized agency for purchasing cream for the co-operative association, bringing down overhead and leading to a decrease in prices.

President Ready to Greet
Chairman of Republican National Committee

Superior.—(AP)—Secretary Work of the interior department arrived in Superior early Monday for a brief consultation with President Coolidge.
Upon arriving, the chairman of the national Republican committee said:
"I have my resignation from the cabinet in my pocket," intimating that this would be delivered to Mr. Coolidge Monday as he might leave again this evening to return to Washington.
Mr. Work was met at the station by Everett Sanders, secretary to the president, and by James W. Smith, secretary Hoover's pre-convention manager, who had been slated to become western manager of the Republican campaign. Chairman Work said he still hoped to induce Good to accept the post and overlook the results of the election.

Chairman Work arrived here in the company of J. H. Carroll, chief counsel of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, whose car was placed at his disposal for the trip.

Superior.—(AP)—Expecting the resignation of Secretary Work of the interior department during the course of his stay at the summer white house, President Coolidge had made all arrangements Monday to entertain the chairman of the national Republican committee on a one-day stay at Cedar Island lodge.

Mr. Coolidge had planned not to come to his office Monday and instructions had been given for his absence.

Sweden Places Name of American on Nomination
Rolls
Geneva.—(AP)—Sweden placed the name of Charles Evans Hughes in the nomination Monday as successor to Dr. John Bassett Moore on the world court of international justice.

It was known that a considerable number of powers were ready to propose the name of Mr. Hughes to the world court, but hitherto Sweden has not been mentioned in Geneva dispatches. Last Saturday dispatches from Geneva said that Japan was ready to nominate him.

Mr. Hughes is on a vacation trip in Europe and when interviewed in Berlin on Saturday declined to discuss anything but his vacation plans. He was truly surprised when shown a Geneva dispatch concerning the nomination and said that Japan would place his name in nomination and that it was the first he had heard of it.

MEMORINEE ATTORNEY
IS CALLED BY DEATH
Menominee, Mich.—(AP)—Michael
J. Doyle, leader in the Democratic party in Michigan and prominent attorney, died Sunday at his home. He had been suffering for six weeks with heart trouble.

Mr. Doyle recently represented
Mrs. Margaret Isadore Lloyd in her divorce suit against Frank Lloyd, architect, receiving a decision in her favor.

His illness dated from a sudden collapse during memorial services for the late Justice Richard C. Flannigan of the Michigan supreme court.

Mr. Doyle attained national prominence. He was noted for his strenuous political work in Michigan Democratic circles, despite the fact that his five sons four of whom are lawyers, are Republicans.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Gladys and Mrs. J.
O'Hare, and the sons, Francis Lloyd, attorney of Menominee, Mich., and William of Chicago. The last is an advertising man.

NATION DEBT IS REDUCED BY 900 MILLIONS

Mellon Reports More Than Three and a Half Billion
Total Expenditure

Washington.—(AP)—The federal government enters the new fiscal year with a treasury surplus of $335,000, 000.

Summarizing the nation's financial condition at the close of the old year, which came at midnight of June 30,
Secretary Mellon declared late Sunday that the period "witnessed a further improvement" in the country's position.

"There was a substantial surplus of receipts over expenditures," he said.
The national debt was reduced by over $900,000,000, accompanied by a material cut in interest charges. The vast refunding operations begun in 1922 were continued and have been well brought to a successful conclusion. Taxes were again cut by over $220,000,000.

The total of ordinary receipts for the fiscal year was $4,042,000,000. Mr.
Mellon announced, with expenditures of $3,644,000,000 chargeable against that amount. The two figures for the previous year were respectively $4, 129,000,000 and $3,564,000,000.

Tax receipts totaled $3,354,000,000 or $111,000,000 less than in the fiscal year of 1922. Receipts from income taxes aggregated $3,174,000,000 as compared with $2,225,000,000 in 1922.

Including disbursements under the war claims act, the total expenditures amounted to $3,671,000,000 as compared with $3,494,000,000 for the fiscal year 1922.

A surplus of $455,000,000 was estimated by the treasury department.
Mr. Mellon said, "exclusive of payments under the settlement of war claims act, which in fact amounted to $50,000,000, or in other words, a surplus of $405,000,000. The actual surplus was $388,000,000 or within 13 per cent of the estimate." Democrats in congress have voiced criticism of the accuracy of the treasurer's estimates in recent years.

During the fiscal year just closed,
the total of the public debt was reduced from $15,311,000,000 to $17,604, 000,000 and the annual interest rate on the interest-bearing debt was cut from 3.96 per cent to 3.57 per cent.
Of the surplus, $387,000,000 has been applied to the public debt and the remainder is to be used for retirement purposes early in the present fiscal year.

POLAR FLIERS RECEIVE
PLAUDITS OF NEW YORK
New York.—(AP)—Sir George Wilkins and Lieut. Ben E. Eason, who flew from Alaska to Spitzbergen, landed here Monday to receive one of New York's welcomes.

Captain Wilkins and Lieut. Eason, were met at quarantine by the mayor's reception committee.

The explorers were escorted to city hall over the route already traversed by such heroes as Lindbergh, Chamberlain and Eason.

Capt. Wilkins in confirming his plans for an Arctic flight, declared his expedition would not be in conflict with the Byrd explorations to the south pole. He would hold strictly to the frozen coast, he said, as his intention was to locate a meteorological station will be located later.

IN FALL AT GREEN BAY
Green Bay.—(AP)—Fred W. Wingert, Barrington, N. J., was injured fatally Monday when he fell more than 50 feet into a gas tank on which he was working for a gas construction company installing the tank.

The cause of the accident is not known. Wingert landed head first on the floor receiving a fractured skull.

many confusing points about the law.

Six Persons Injured In Weekend Motor Wrecks

Six persons were injured in accidents due to automobiles in and near Appleton over the weekend. None of the injuries are regarded as serious and only one person was taken to a hospital.

Probably the most serious accident in which local people were involved occurred on Highway 41 near Kimberly when a car driven by Paul Clark, said to live in Appleton, collided with
a machine driven by Plummer King,
305 W. Seventh-st., Kaukauna.

King's two children, Dorothy and Ella, were bruised and cut about the face and Mrs. King was unconscious when the car was driven by Paul Clark,
said to live in Appleton, collided with
a machine driven by Plummer King,
305 W. Seventh-st., Kaukauna.

The only Paul Clark listed in the Appleton city directory could not be reached Monday.

Emil Sommers, 28, route 4, Appleton, suffered two severe scalp wounds when his head crashed through the windshield of his car after it went into the ditch on Highway 47, near Battles Corners, about 5:30 Sunday afternoon.

Sommers, who was returning to his home, was watching a side road
and lost control of the machine, which left the road and crashed into a telephone pole. The machine was demolished. He was taken to his home by P. J. Blanshan, county motorcycle officer, and later to St. Elizabeth hospital at Appleton. He was discharged from the hospital Monday morning.

Miss Edith Niles, Keenah, suffered a broken leg and minor injuries about the body and Mrs. Harry Niles was cut about the face and hands when the car in which they were riding tipped over into a ditch on Highway 125 near the Stroebe Island crossing Saturday afternoon. They were taken to Theda Clark hospital by a passing motorist.

Mrs. Niles lost control of the car when one of the wheels struck a rut, sending the machine into the ditch.
Mrs. Niles was able to leave the hospital after receiving medical attention.

Wisconsin Men Named In Federal Utilities Quiz

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—Co-operation with Wisconsin college professors in preparation of textbooks on utilities and with institutions of higher learning in making a survey of textbooks used in Wisconsin schools were disclosed Monday in the federal trade commission investigation of Wisconsin utility organizations.

Arthur P. Herwig, of Milwaukee, director of the Wisconsin Public Utility Information bureau, testified that Professor M. J. Glazier and Professor Woy of the University of Wisconsin obtained information and suggestions through him in preparation of textbooks on utilities. He said that Professor Glazier submitted one or two chapters of the book he wrote outlining public utility economics and that he submitted them to W. V.
McGovern of Milwaukee, a telephone company executive, who made comments on those chapters.

Relative to assistance given Professor Woy, the witness testified that he provided the educator with information on public utility public relations and he said he thought that Professor Woy wrote a chapter on his suggestions. Herwig testified that a subcommittee of the Wisconsin Utilities association cooperated with educational institutions in a survey of textbooks, but he said the survey was not directed by him and he gave little information about the results.

Herwig testified that he had distributed in Wisconsin schools approximately 15,000 pamphlets on electricity and gas which were prepared by the American Gas association. Herwig said that his information bureau assisted $10,000 to $11,000 a year on its public relations work, the major activity being the issuance of clip-sheets to newspapers in which public utility publicity was carried.

Herwig testified that he had been solicited by editors who had been soliciting the clip sheets and said that he obtained good results. The witness said that he had urged public utility companies to advertise regularly in newspapers.

Herwig said he was formerly executive secretary of the pensions laws commission in Wisconsin and prior to that had been a newspaper man, having worked on the Milwaukee Daily News, the Milwaukee Leader and Evening Wisconsinian. He said he was a member of the Wisconsin Press association and that the bureau paid his dues. Herwig also explained that the money used to support the bureau was contributed by gas and electric utility concerns, some of whom have interstate transmission lines. Herwig said that he had been director of the bureau since it was organized in December 1920.

OWNERSHIP ARTICLES RUN Herwig testified that articles had been printed in the bureau's clip-sheet which did not show that information had come to his organization.
He also testified that articles against municipal ownership of utilities had been carried in the clip sheet.

A report Herwig said he had made about the Wisconsin public utility information bureau.

their way slowly southward on sluggish winds, nine balloons representing six nations were still in the running

They were the Helveta, Swiss entry

She was the last to arrive. The planes

DAMAGE SUIT FOR $15,000 SETTLED OUTSIDE OF COURT $4,000 Agreement Reached Just as Case Was Ready to Be Tried

A municipal court with jury ready to hear the $15,000 damage suit brought by Arnold Guerts, administrator of the estate of Jacob Guerts, against Arnold and George Sanderfoot and Wilveria Vandenberg, the case was settled for $4,000 Monday morning. All of the principals are from the town of Freedom.

Guerts was killed in an automobile accident on Highway 55 about a mile north of Little Chute in the town of Vandenberg on Aug. 21, 1927. He was riding with Vandenberg when the accident occurred and the damage suit was originally brought against Arnold and George Sanderfoot.

Arnold Sanderfoot was the driver of the car which figured in the fatal accident with the Vandenberg machine. Vandenberg was going north and as he approached a culvert, according to the complaint, Sanderfoot attempted to pass him and struck his hub cap, forcing him to crash into the concrete culvert and wall. Guerts suffered a fractured skull and died an hour and a half later.

The complaint charged Sanderfoot was responsible for the accident because he failed to give warning when he started to pass Vandenberg. On the plea of Sanderfoot, Vandenberg was made a party and both the defendants paid a share of the settlement, according to attorneys.

SIX PERSONS HURT IN MOTOR CRASHES

Appleton Barber Supply company and belonging to the Neuman Sales and Service company was driven into a ditch on highway 41 near Little Chute, by an unidentified driver after it was stolen from the Neuman garage Saturday night. Mr. Neuman did not know when he was informed of the wreck, when he was slightly injured about 9 o'clock Saturday night, when he walked into the side of a car driven by Grant Rohm, route 2, Black Creek. Welch was crossing the street at 341 W. College-ave. He left arm and left leg were slightly bruised.

Two cars were slightly damaged in a crashup on W. College-ave about 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. A car owned by the Jacquot Cheese company was being backed into the street by the driver and it collided with a machine owned and driven by Ervin Wunderlich, route 2, Wunderlich was driving on College-ave. Three tires were punctured on Wunderlich's car and a fender was damaged. The police did not learn the name of the driver of the other car.

At least five persons are dead, including two children, and nine more are in hospitals seriously injured as the result of weekend accidents over Wisconsin.

Two children were fatally injured and six other persons received serious injuries when a runaway automobile ploughed into the group in Milwaukee Sunday.

One fatality was listed from celebration of the Fourth of July when a fire cracker, tossed in a gasoline tank, exploded.

A motorcycleist was killed when his machine skidded under the wheels of an automobile coming in the opposite direction.

It was stated that the bureau's news bulletin was issued bi-weekly and that the service dealt exclusively with the provisions of news. It added that the director had visited editors to explain the purposes of the organization.

The report said that due to offhand hostility to the printed clip sheet service which was regarded by some newspapers as "free publicity graft," every effort was made to include only such items as could easily qualify as "uncolored news articles." The report added that the committee issued pamphlets to schools on electric, gas and electric railway industries made available by the American Gas association and cooperated with University of Wisconsin professors in the preparation of books on utility engineering and utility economics.

Working with the Wisconsin Utility commission, the committee has examined text books in use in schools, and the association has organized a committee on cooperation with educational institutions on which virtually every college and university is represented, said the report.

WORK CALLS ON CAL TO DISCUSS POLITICS

guest to be taken to the executive residence immediately upon reaching here.

Secretary Work by coming to Superior was given an opportunity to discuss with Mr. Coolidge the political situation and the campaign plans of the Republican party, and to sound out the chief executive as to the extent, if any, to which he will be willing to participate in the pre-election activities of his party.

Mr. Work, in addition, had the chance to consult with James M. Good, pre-convention manager of Secretary Hoover, who came Sunday night to Superior from his summer home not far from here on purpose for such a conference. The cabinet officer, while passing through Chicago, Sunday, intimated that Good might not be able to assume the duties of western manager of the Hoover campaign. Good himself in Superior confirmed this report.

President Coolidge so far has given no consideration to possible activities on his part in the coming campaign.

Mr. Work, it is understood, also had several departmental matters for the consideration of Mr. Coolidge. The latter had to be informed before the resignation of the interior secretary of the general status of the department. Figures referring to the preliminary budget estimates for the interior department, which have to be filed with the budget bureau by July 15, also were in Mr. Work's possession.

Injection of politics into the tranquil atmosphere of Cedar Island lodge followed closely upon the complete reunion of the Coolidge household to which both Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge were known to have looked forward greatly. John Coolidge arrived Sunday from Northampton after graduating from Amherst College and after a short visit at the home of Gov. Trumbull of Connecticut.

John Coolidge's first appearance in public here was made immediately after his arrival at the lodge which was taken by his father and mother to church at Brule.

The boy, now grown much taller than ever Mr. Coolidge, shared in a warm demonstration which followed the service. John Taylor, the blind lay preacher on the Brule church, conducted the service as usual. He offered Mr. Coolidge greetings and good wishes for his approaching birthday which falls on July 4, and then preached a sermon choosing as his text the twenty sixth chapter of the gospel according to St. Matthew.

Heeney Knows All About Fighting; Cares Nothing For Book Knowledge

It's leather and literature, that T. Heeney slings. You'll need a microscope to find anything resembling a library at his Fairhaven, N. J., training quarters, where these characteristic pictures of the Australian challenger were taken.

Fairhaven, N. J. — "Shakespeare. Sure I know about him. That's the way Tunney lectures about."

Tom Heeney was all ready for my question. But he wants it understood he and Tunney are fighting for the heavyweight championship and not a Phly Beta Kappa key. He dislikes interviews that take the form of college entrance exams.

Never said Tom, has been caught in the compromising company of any book. Never has he loitered in literature or frittered away his evenings in lecture halls.

"I quit school in the fifth standard," Heeney told me. This means somewhere south of grammar school in Gisborne, New Zealand, where Heeney was exposed to education.

"School didn't take," he said. "I was glad to get out."

Recently, in London, an effort was made to graft a little artistic appreciation on to the fighter. He was conducted, forcibly, through the National Gallery.

"Where I took one swell beating," he admitted without shame. "It lasted two hours, but I was unconscious when they finished. I don't remember a picture. Someone seemed to be saying 'Isn't it lovely?' every five minutes before I passed out."

"Music? Sure I like music. Now you're talking. But only jazz—American jazz. Blimie, I'm a fighter."

Heeney's one cultural asset is one of environment—a British accent. It's not the scholarly diction of Cambridge or Oxford, to be sure, but there is a distinct inclination to pronounce an "h," and a preference for "I sigh" instead of "I say."

Again, Tunney wallops Heeney not only in literature and art, but in looks. Heeney is no Adonis. About two inches shorter than Tunney, and much broader and thicker, his figure bespeaks strength rather than symmetry. His face is good-natured, but not handsome. A few gray hairs have begun to show at 29. He has the tanned, disheveled face of a man who has lived much out of doors—as he has.

Excusing him on the scores of art, literature, and beauty, Heeney seems most satisfactory as a prize fighter. He talks, looks and acts just as you would expect a fighter to, except that he is uncommonly modest about his prowess. He admits he fights because "you don't call fighting work if you have actually gone to work—eaten and slept by whistle," he said.

"I know what real work is. Just try carrying bags of sugar weighing from 150 to 200 pounds all day on your shoulders, as I did in Australia, and you'll know that fighting is just good exercise."

FIND UNEXPLODED MINE UNDER FRENCH RAILROAD

Lille, France.—(AP)—The tens of thousands of passengers who have travelled by rail between Lille and Paris during the past ten years have, without knowing it, been literally riding over a powder mine.

Workers repairing the grade crossing at Libercourt unearthed a formidable collection of German shells varying in caliber from 5 to 10 inches connected with electric detonators, skillfully buried under the track. This mine had apparently been laid by the Germans during the retreat in 1918, but the wires leading to the detonators must have been cut, preventing the explosion.

Cities, In Year, Double Funds For Recreation

New York.—(AP)—An expenditure of $22,191,763 for municipal recreation in 1927, as contrasted with $10,200,000 in 1926 and $9,317,000 four years before, is revealed in the annual year book of recreation statistics for the United States and Canada published by the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

Nearly half the 1927 outlay was for the purchase of land, buildings and permanent equipment.

Bond issues for recreation from 1923 to 1927 inclusive totaled $47,105,448, including $11,662,200 last year. The number of cities reporting recreational facilities under leadership rose from 565 in 1922 to 815 in 1927. Of the latter number, 321 have year round supervision of recreation.

Baseball on public diamonds is falling behind the pace of growth of some other sports. From 1924 to 1927 the number of baseball players doubled but that of playground ball players tripled, while basketball showed nearly four times as many players. Last year 242,214 enrolled in playground ball as against 212,233 in baseball. The number of teams in the six most popular municipal sports last year were as follows: playground ball, 16,122; baseball, 14,674; basketball, 13,652; volleyball, 6,172; horseshoes, 4,291 and soccer, 3,438.

Of more than twenty-five million spectators at municipal sports, fifteen million attended baseball games.

Tennis courts increased by 723 and swimming pools by 147 over the 1926 totals. Enthusiasm for golf hit the municipal pocketbook to the extent of 49 new courses last year.

Children's playgrounds and baseball diamonds, however, are not increasing rapidly enough to take care of the child population, according to the Playground and Recreation Association. No city has enough playgrounds and the lack of baseball diamonds is blamed in part at least for the relatively slow growth of baseball as compared with some of the other sports. The insufficient number of playgrounds helps to account for the increasing death toll of children at play in city streets, says the association.

Paris.—(AP)—And now the weatherman is taking to the air.

Land observation stations take care of sunshine and rain on land, ships are beginning to report on what happens at sea and airplanes are proving valuable to the French Meteorological bureau up in the sky.

Three airplanes have made regular trips aloft at Paris, Lyon and St. Raphael, on the Riviera. Their observations, says General Delambre, chief of the weather service, "have proved so useful that it is hoped to equip a half dozen more unfortunately, money is scarce with us."

There are three main reasons why weather reports often are wrong, Delambre says. One is the lack of weather reports from high in the air, another is relative ignorance of what takes place at sea and the third is that the Spanish weather men take a day of rest on Sunday. That leaves a big hole in the network of stations one day a week and almost any kind of a storm can sneak up on France from the south without warning.

Nevertheless, Delambre says world-wide cooperation and the continual increase in the number of weather stations is building a system that eventually will keep track of weather all over the world and vastly improve the accuracy of predictions.

FRENCH AIRPLANES TO TELL WEATHER

Trips by Aviators Prove That Their Observations Are Correct

ENGLAND HAS RACING COMPLEX

Races and contests of almost every description are being held in England. Horse and dog races have become the accepted thing while still drawing immense crowds. A six-day race between a man on foot and another riding two horses was held in Crystal Palace, the runner, having the most mileage, being declared the winner. Twenty-two barges completed in a sixty-mile event on the Thames. Welshmen are racing snails. At Brooklands a porter's electric trolley, such as is used to carry baggage at railway stations, was loaded with two tons of sand and pitted against three giant racing cars. The handicapper enabled the trolley to win 32 seconds. Disabled war veterans in

ISSUE WARNING ON SHORT TIME NOTES

Railroad Commission's Orders Say Buyer Won't Profit by Investment

Madison.—(AP)—A warning to all brokers of the state against handling short-time securities of companies whose appraisals are "obviously excessive and out of proportion to any reasonable basis" has been issued by the state railroad commission.

Such appraisals may have come from the engineers who analyzed the company, but "responsibility for unreasonable representations must rest upon the broker, the utilities body said.

Recently the commission prohibited the sale of one year notes of companies which acquired a number of utilities properties. In one case it was proposed to sell notes on a circular showing net income before depreciation of considerably more than twice the note interest, but if reasonable provision had been made for depreciation of the claimed values, the balance would have been less than the interest requirements.

The note issued in that particular case, the commission said, exceeded the total purchase price of the properties. The value claimed after depreciation, based on an engineer's appraisal, was about 65 percent more than the purchase price. "In the present market for telephone properties, it is hardly conceivable that any considerable group of properties could be acquired for less than the actual depreciated value of the properties and generally the prices paid are in excess of such value," the warning said.

Within the past few days the commission ordered discontinuance of the sale of more than $2,000,000 in short time notes, and suspended the sale of $350,000 more of such notes.

Short time securities of the Interstate Public Utilities corporation, amounting to $1,600,000, were ordered discontinued, as were $10,000 in notes of the Three States Telephone Company.

The commission temporarily discontinued sale of $350,000 in notes of the M. C. O. Gas Company, and the Elbukhan Oil Company, whose offices are in Milwaukee. The company was granted a hearing for Monday to determine whether the order should be made permanent.

FEW BIRDS CROSS ATLANTIC WESTWARD

Scientists Find That Eastward Trans-Atlantic Flights Are Less Difficult

Berlin.—(AP)—The next successful airplane flight from Europe to America will equalize scores as between birds and birdmen, at 2 and 2. That is, as far as bird records go, and they are somewhat scanty, according to Dr. E. Stresemann, chief of the ornithological section of the Natural History museum here.

East to west transoceanic flights seem to be as difficult to accomplish for birds as they are for aviators, for whereas 40 kinds of migratory birds are known to visit European shores from the western hemisphere, only seven kinds of European birds occasionally hazard the perilous crossing westward, and none is a land bird.

As a matter of fact, said Dr. Stresemann, there are only two authentic records of birds having flown from Europe to America. Both were so-called three toed gulls and were set free in 1924, with rings on their legs, one from the west coast of Scotland and one from Ireland. They were caught, one in Labrador and one in Newfoundland, the following year.

"There is no regular migratory movement of birds across the Atlantic," Dr. Stresemann is explaining. "For birds migrate only from north to south in search of a milder climate in winter time. American birds have been occasionally seen on the west coasts of Ireland, England, France and Belgium and on Heligoland. They are mostly American water fowl, migratory thrushes, and wrens, but their wanderings may be regarded as purely erratic. They are not specially strong winged birds, and it is only due to particularly favorable winds or the chance of getting a 'lift' on a passing ship that they are able to reach Europe at all. How many perish on the way no one can tell."

BANDITRY MAKES CHINESE BUILD HOMES LIKE FORTS

Foochow, China.—(AP)—The scourge of bandits in Fukien province has caused a change in the architecture of the countryside. Homes of well-to-do Chinese which makes them bear a resemblance to forts.

Houses with no windows had to openings whatever on the ground floor, excepting a small and heavily steel-plated door, and with barred windows on the second floor, are becoming numerous.

Wealth and banditry exist within a short distance of each other, and any time a band of outlaws may sweep down from nearby hills to loot. Watch towers have been erected in some localities, equipped with loopholes for rifles. Every home has a gun, and a signal from the watchtowers results in the gathering of a considerable fighting force. In one place mounds in a rice field were pointed out to the Associated Press correspondent as graves of bandits who had got the worst of it from the defenders.

mechanical invalid chairs put on a race of a mile and a quarter, fifty-one-year-old man finishing in seven minutes and winning a silver cup.

That the cause of acute rheumatism would be found in a microbe was recently declared by Prof. W. H. Eyre while speaking at the Institute of Hygiene at Belfast, Ireland.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service

BY DAVID DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED NATHANIEL DANN, struggling artist, gives a party at his studio in honor of his fiancée, VIRGINIA, beautiful daughter of RICHARD BREWSTER, Wall-st financier.

NIEL'S model, CHIRI, is jealous of VIRGINIA and tells him that he will spoil his career if he marries a wealthy girl who cannot appreciate his art. He says their love will overcome all obstacles and they are making happy plans until her father dies suddenly of heart failure and VIRGINIA is prostrated with grief.

The doctor advises that death was caused by worry and shock, and it is later revealed that BREWSTER had lost his fortune in speculation. NIEL urges an immediate marriage but his pleading is interrupted by FREDERICK DEAN, an old family friend, who persuades VIRGINIA to come and live with him and his daughter CLARISSA, who is a girlhood chum of hers. He wins her consent by saying that an immediate marriage would be disrespectful to her father's memory.

NIEL is furious when VIRGINIA tells him her decision, for he suspects DEAN'S motives and does not like the shallow CLARISSA, who has just announced her engagement to RUSSELL WAINGOULD. He takes VIRGINIA to her new home and returns unhappily to his neglected studio, where he finds CHIRI, who has cleaned his apartment and has hot coffee waiting for him. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER V

Nathaniel groaned. "Get away from that phone," he ordered, but Chiri only turned her back for answer. Putting the mouthpiece to her lips she said:

"Mr. Mann is not in. What's that? Walker 8726? No, it isn't. I guess you've got the wrong number. I understood you to say you wanted Mr. Mann."

Nathaniel strode over and took the instrument out of her hands as she replaced the receiver.

If that was Virginia she'll probably call again. For Pete's sake, Chiri, keep quiet if she does, will you?"

"You wouldn't deceive her, would you?" Chiri mocked.

"I've got to. She wouldn't understand your being here at this time of night."

"Night? You're looney. It's morning."

"Then get out, will you? I want a bath and... yes, yes, this is Walker 8726 Virginia? Of course, it's Niel... my voice? Oh, I only just got up... yes, I sleep a little. Didn't I? Worried? Please don't do that, sweetheart... of course I understand... I'll be right up."

"One of those clocking females," Chiri muttered scornfully. "Expects to find you just where she thinks you ought to be every time. That'll be sweet when you get over being gaga."

"I ought to pitch you out on your head," Nathaniel told her; "but I suppose you've earned your breakfast."

"Is that so? Well, I wouldn't eat with you if that's the way you feel," she flared back at him.

Nathaniel saw that he had touched her pride—that vagrant pride that he never could prophesy.

"Oh come, Chiri, don't be silly; I'm no end pleased you got the old place in shape for once, but you mustn't expect gratitude from men. And you will get me in a hole with Virginia. You know, if you keep this up. She simply couldn't understand you now."

"I should hope not! Narrow little soul, squeezed up in tissue and moth-balls."

"You don't know what you're talking about, Chiri."

"Well, isn't it narrow to think a lot of dirt simply because I spent the night here? That's what you're afraid your Virginia would think if she knew isn't it?"

"No, it isn't. I mean she wouldn't be able to understand your staying here as an unwelcome guest. She would think I wanted you."

"Well, what if you did? Hasn't a man a right to have the people he wants around him? We haven't harmed anyone, have we?"

"It's all a matter of viewpoint, Chiri. That's the only real difference between any two people. You and Virginia are like the East and the West: simply because of the way you look at things."

"I suppose I'm the East. Well, thank the gods that be that the sun rises in me."

"Now that we've settled that will you cook up some breakfast while I take a bath?" Nathaniel asked with evident relief.

"The sweetest breakfast you've ever had, humbly says your slave."

Nathaniel felt less depressed than he had since Virginia first told him she meant to accept Mr. Dean's offer of a home. She had called him up to say she had worried all night about making him unhappy. He could tell that she really was anxious for his consent. It soothed him to know that he mattered so much to her.

"Anyway, I've got a crust to ask her to pass up a home like Dean's and camp herself up in the kind of apartment I could offer," he argued with himself, trying to drown the persistent feeling that it was a bad move for Virginia to go to the Deans. He couldn't tolerate Clariissa and he couldn't see how Virginia could either.

"Unless it's because, having grown up with her, so to speak, she over-looks her faults through force of habit," he thought, or because she "earned" to live before the age of discrimination."

He hurried through his bathing and dressing, partly so as not to keep Chiri waiting and partly to get an early start to Virginia. She had said she needed his help with some packing.

But he noticed as he knotted his tie and brushed his coat that the sounds from the cubby-hole and studio had ceased. He sincerely hoped Chiri hadn't been more deeply offended than he thought. She has a kind-hearted little "muzz," but quite a bit dangerous, too, as "freed" people are apt to be, he felt.

She was gone. He made sure of it and then set about to prepare his own breakfast, but he discovered that she had left everything ready for him on the table. A napkin was spread over the toast and eggs to keep them warm.

Thoughtful kid.

The grapefruit looked tempting, so nicely cut and juicy. Nathaniel attacked it with eagerness and a bent spoon. When? What the devil! He spluttered, picking up his coffee and dashing wildly to the sink. Salt! And loss of it!

He pushed the grapefruit aside and started in to breakfast on toast and eggs, but when he lifted the napkin he found only a couple of shoes of bread that had been burned black and an egg that looked as if it had started to fry itself on a red-hot coal and then changed its mind.

"That's what I call a fendish trick," Nathaniel raved. "There was nothing left now but the coffee and he had little faith in it. He was entirely justified in his belief as he learned when he charily took a sip of the most vile-tasting stuff he'd ever beheld in a cup. His nearest guess was that Chiri had boiled coffee and tea together."

"Well, she got even," he granted; "if she had a grievance."

He got a cup of coffee at a coffee shop where he knew there wouldn't be any of his friends to engage him in conversation and delay his getting to Virginia's apartment.

When he arrived there he was prepared to endeavor to make her believe he had come round to her way of thinking. If she would not marry him now there was no use in making her more miserable than she already was, he told himself.

Virginia greeted him most flatteringly. She looked very tired and fragile in a black chiffon hostess gown, and when Nathaniel came to her she went into his arms and relaxed in his embrace with a soft sigh. It made Nathaniel feel very manly. He bent his head and buried his lips in the verbera-scented lure that was her hair. Then he rubbed his cheek against it very gently.

"I was a brute to you yesterday," he confessed, "but I'm different today. I won't make you unhappy again, sweetheart."

Virginia lifted her head to look at him.

"Last night, thinking about you and how you felt about my going to Mr. Dean's I wondered if you would believe that I don't care enough for you. Niel, to do as you ask," she said.

"I did doubt you a little," Nathaniel confessed but the way he said it revealed to Virginia that he no longer doubted her.

"I called you early this morning because I was afraid you wouldn't want to come and I had to know if you felt like that," she hastened to confide.

Nathaniel laughed at her. "Do you think my love is made of self-conceit? That if I can't have my own way I will stop loving you?"

"No, but I want you to know that I don't love you selfishly either. I want to give in to you with all my heart."

Nathaniel laughed at her. "Do you think my love is made of self-conceit? That if I can't have my own way I will stop loving you?"

Niel, darling, but that would be selfish because I know it isn't best."

Nathaniel compressed his lips over an impulse to argue with her. After all, he had nothing but a groundless objection to her plan and his own dis-appointment to back him up in op-posing her. And he wanted to make her happy.

"At least you will promise to marry me soon, Virginia? You ought to go fifty-fifty with me on giving in, you know."

"I know I should, Niel. You're being very good. Just let me get over this terrible blow and then perhaps I won't be so fearful of the future. I'll try to see things as you do."

They sealed their agreement with the seal of the ages between men and women and then Nathaniel asked to be put to work. There were a few books and pictures that Virginia felt entitled to take away with her and these she and Nathaniel packed into a couple of suitcases. They had to go over the place carefully to make sure that nothing she ought to take, such as papers and personal belongings, was left behind.

SMITH MAKES ISSUE

Governor Smith makes it known that as the Democratic nominee for president he proposes to oppose prohibition and "to point the way" to a change. Whether he is to do this by repeal of the amendment or modification of the enforcement act he does not say. Doubtless he will make himself specific later, but the distinction is important. However, there is to be no mistake about it. Mr. Smith is going to stand as the leader and champion of the wet forces in the campaign. Prohibition is to be made an issue despite the decision of the Democratic convention at Houston that it is not an issue, and despite the flat refusal of the resolutions committee to even consider a plank containing in substance the exact statements made by Governor Smith in accepting his nomination.

The morning of the day Governor Smith sent his "wet" telegram to the Houston convention, the New York World said editorially: "Unless Governor Smith acts promptly, decisively and in accord with his convictions, the country will, we believe, regard the decision of the convention on the prohibition plank as a deliberate repudiation of his leadership." These possibly related incidents bring out impressively the conflict of attitude between Smith and the Houston convention.

One thing must be said in praise of Governor Smith. He has displayed the kind of courage the American people like in refusing to let the Houston convention stultify his candidacy. He has refused to let it nominate him and then repudiate his leadership. He has shown that he is not afraid to stand on his convictions and to go down with them if the country so wills. A candidate for president must have strong views on a subject to press it forward so uncompromisingly. It makes no difference whether he has acquired his views in an atmosphere which places undue emphasis on the issue, it is just as real and important to him. He in effect stakes his whole candidacy on this issue.

Eastern Democrats and wets generally believe there is only one way to win and that is by forcing prohibition to the front and taking the negative side. Unquestionably they are right. This will mean the scrapping of the Houston platform, or at least the inferences contained in its adoption and in the nomination of a candidate for vice-president.

Mr. Smith's decision to make prohibition the paramount issue, which he has now done regardless of anything he may say or do subsequently, is a frank bid for the presidency on that proposition. The country knows where he stands and he wants it to know. Nothing more need be said to capitalize his position at full value with the wets. Associate campaigners, even Mr. Smith himself, can now turn to other issues, but they will be mostly camouflage. No one will know what to expect of the Democratic party on foreign policy or domestic policy except on this one question. Certainly it has no agricultural program, and it has no foreign relations program. It will attack corruption and privilege, but that means nothing.

Prohibition, by Governor Smith's utterance, is the one great issue in the election so far as the Democrats are concerned. It may be wise, it may be winning, we do not know. If it is both it will mean acceptance of repeal or modification by the dry South as well as by dry Midwestern states. It will mean a complete overturning of the policies and forces which have determined elections in the past, along with a delimitation of parties.

GREATEST OF ALL

General Umberto Nobile is rescued and the men who "crashed" on the ice when the Italia touched and was blown away are being carried to civilization as fast as airplanes of remarkable nerve and skill can remove them from their great block of floating ice in the polar sea. There still remain to be saved ten of the Italia's men who stayed aboard or wandered from the stranded party; and, what is more important, there remains the lost relief party of six headed by the greatest explorer of them all—Röald Amundsen.

The only man in the world who has stood at both its poles has landed or crashed somewhere in the bleak, frozen territory about Spitzbergen, so unreal that the news films of its white mountains and expanses seem "faked." He is lost in search of the pilot whose dirigible, the Norge, carried his expedition across the pole to Alaska. His sacrifice, if it develops that Amundsen does not return, will have been on behalf of a man with whom he had violently quarreled over the credit for the Norge venture. Noble perhaps had been led to make his ill-fated trip on the Italia for the sole purpose of proving that he did not need an explorer along.

The chivalry of this last voyage, to find and succor an enemy who had been a comrade, would provide a fitting climax to the career of the great Norseman. He has truly achieved that lonely eminence in which Alexander the Great supposed himself to be—where there are "no more worlds to conquer." Neither the north nor the south offers any challenges comparable to those Amundsen has met. The world hopes and expects that he will come back—as he has before when lesser men have despaired of him. But if Amundsen does not return, he will have passed as we know he would prefer, and in a way thoroughly in keeping with his career.

YOU FEEL BETTER

A sensation was caused at a middle-western convention of teachers of physical education recently by a statement of Dr. J. E. Rush that physical education does not improve children's health to any great extent, that exercise neither prevents nor cures disease, that the claim it "builds up resistance" is not proved, and that former athletes who spend many days a week at golf keeping "fit" are keeping something for which they have no use, at least in terms of health.

All of which may be entirely true without reducing in the least the value of daily exercise and a good "physique."

The strong man may succumb to pneumonia or tuberculosis even more easily than the weakling who never exercises. But any strong man who, like Theodore Roosevelt, has advanced to a vigorous physical state from a weakling's condition will testify that the confident feeling of bodily preparedness for the hard tasks of life is worth any imaginary risk of lower immunity to germs—if any such incredible advantage in favor of the weakling exists.

The boy who takes pride in his expanding biceps and his athletic ability, his physical endurance and his fistic skill in a pinch will be a more efficient man, as a rule, and live a considerably happier and more carefree life than the boy who grows up without the normal physical interest of manly youth. The former may be an easier victim of contagion, or at any rate as easy a victim as the lad who neglects the physical part of his education. But in his "well spells" he will feel so much better, fill a sweetheart's eye so much more pleasantly, live so much more vigorously and confidently and happily, that the trouble of keeping in shape will not be wasted.

The best evidence as to the value of a strong and athletic body comes, not from the doctors or college professors, but from the man who owns one. He knows the intangible and all-pervading pleasure of feeling "on top of the world"—of being "in the pink." It's an asset that can't be measured in terms of metabolism or "resistance" to germs, nor by any outward standard. But it makes the whole world a bit better place, for the lucky with greater trust and courage, to be faced with success.

HONORING BENEDICT ARNOLD

A new highway through the Maine wilderness into Canada and Quebec will be opened shortly. It follows the route taken by Benedict Arnold and his troops in the gallant but ill-starred attempt by the American colonists to take Quebec during the Revolution, and will be in a way, a kind of memorial to Arnold.

It is only fair that Arnold should get such a memorial. His name is immortal as a symbol of treachery; yet, prior to his defection, he served the American cause bravely and well. He will never be enshrined as one of our heroes, but we might as well recognize his very real contributions to our fight for independence.

If Arnold had died during the attack on Quebec he would be immortalized as a great, heroic American.

Couples married fifty years or longer held a picnic at Mount Vernon, Ill., the other day. A good time was had by all and at a late hour the couples departed for home in a Ford roadster.

It must be very costly to drink in New York. We saw a dispatch the other day saying a seat on the club had cost a man $85,000.

Tip to the oil men. We have a friend who will buy a car just as soon as filling stations are put on the installment basis.

AN OUTLINE OF HYGIENE

No. 12—When the Heart Grows Weary
Chronic myocarditis is the ubiquitous name doctors give to the slow heart muscle failure of cardiovascular disease or heart artery wearing out. Sometimes this gradual loss of efficiency in the wall of the heart is apparently independent of any appreciable impairment of the arteries, but almost invariably after a few years signs of hypertension and arteriosclerosis appear in the form of chronic myocarditis. Indicated by Drs. J. P. O'Hare and A. W. Calhoun of Boston, and H. O. Oliver of Minneapolis, indicate that chronic myocarditis in persons past middle age is usually secondary to hypertension or arteriosclerosis (high pressure or hardening of the arteries). These students of the disease found signs of beginning arteriosclerosis in the retina (back of eye) in all but one of 59 cases of chronic myocarditis, in all of which the blood pressure was at the normal or low, though all the patients had high blood pressure at some previous time. In these cases the diagnosis of chronic myocarditis was based on the character of the heart sounds heard by the physician, the presence of rales (little crackling or squeaky sounds) in the bases of the lungs, enlargement of the liver and edema (dropsical swelling) of the legs.

But when and how back up. This is only a health column. What's a good practical test of a person's heart muscle efficiency? I think the very best is holding the breath. While sitting at rest, and breathing naturally, take a moderate breath and then hold your breath as long as you can, timing yourself with your watch. The normal average breaking point is 45 seconds—that is, one is compelled to take a breath then. If the circulation is inefficient you can hold your breath only 30 seconds or maybe less. This doesn't show that your heart is affected, but it certainly indicates that you need a medical examination and advice. Some invalids or sick persons can hold their breath over a minute. This doesn't signify anything in particular.

Chronic myocarditis is a painless condition. In most cases patients never complain of any distress about the heart. Just a general feeling of physical and mental inefficiency. Patients ascribe their impaired health to almost everything but heart muscle failure. That's the reason why I believe the periodic health examination is a good sensible habit for persons over 40 years of age, especially persons who still have fairly good health.

Chronic myocarditis is ordinarily very chronic, from 15 to 30 years. No, we haven't any cure for it, but nevertheless it is best for you to know the truth about your condition and advise you how to live while you live. No one has a right to become an invalid a moment sooner than he can help; nor to cultivate the role of a skeleton at the feast. The care of one's health is a religion. The body is the temple of the soul. Some people do not consider the temple sacred. If they do not defile it they neglect it shamefully.

And that's all we have to say about middle age. Now let's have a look around at the environment, a glimpse at the health hazards in it and some brief suggestions how to cope with them. (Article 42 will appear shortly.)

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Forgetting
Please write on the back of the enclosed card the name which means "loss of memory." (P. L.)
Answer—You forgot to stamp the card. Amnesia is the term you couldn't recall. By the way, what a plight a fellow would be in if he suddenly had amnesia and forgot the name of his affliction. I sympathize with amnesiac sufferers. Once I arrived at a strange hotel in a strange city, left my family case and so on in my room, and went out for a few miles of oxygen on the hoof. When I had returned enough I decided to leave the way back to my hotel. But, Jimmy Christmas, I had forgotten the name of the hotel and didn't even know the name of the streets near by. I absorbed a lot of oxygen that day before I came upon a cleft.

Grandpa's Shiny
My husband has creeping paralysis or paralysis adjutant. Can anything be done for this disease? (Mrs. V. C. L.)

Answer—Parkinson's affection, shaking palsy, or paralysis agitans, isn't creeping paralysis, and really isn't paralysis at all. It is just a kind of trembling and associated weakness of the affected members. I should be glad to tell your husband's physician, on the doctor's request, what little I have learned about remedies for this trouble from readers who have found considerable relief. As this involves the administration of uncommon medicines, I can give no information about it except to physicians.

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

A LONG WINDED GERMAN

Some writers can say a volume's worth in a dozen pages. Some other writers need enough elbow room for a thousand pages if they are going to say anything at all. There is little sense in objecting to either method, although of course the man who can say something worth while in a dozen pages makes fewer demands on the crowded time of the reader. But if the thousand page man really says something worth while on every page of his book, there is no good reason for objecting to his method. The proof of the pudding is in the eating and if a thousand page novel is only the real thing, I for one do not object to it.

Those general remarks are incubated by the fact that I recently finished the second volume of "The Magic Mountain" by Thomas Mann. The book is so enormous in sheer bulk that I did not have the courage to read it straight through. I read the first volume about six months ago, then left the story and sandwiched a couple of dozen of other books between the two sessions, and then tackled the second volume.

Each volume has approximately 700 pages. And they are real pages crowded with print. No more imitation of a page with wide margins and large type, but pages that are filled to the brim, although of course the type is clear and very readable. Each page contains as much matter as a page and a half of an average best seller. Which means that the book is really five times as long as the average novel.

No wonder such a book has to be taken in separate sessions. In the case of "The Magic Mountain" it does no harm to interrupt the reading and putting several other books between the two parts because there is no plot thread to be kept in mind. The book is not a story as such, as it is a situation, and it is a situation that cannot be lost from the memory. It is merely this: Hans Castorp, a young German, goes to a tuberculosis sanatorium up in the mountains to visit his cousin, a patient, for three weeks. It is discovered that he has a soft spot in his lung himself, and so he stays for seven years.

That is all the plot there is. The whole book consists of his reactions to the new life, the reactions of the other patients, the effect of fever on their habits and points of view, their love affairs, their affairs of honor even, their endless discussions about everything under the sun.

One volume of this was extremely interesting because Thomas Mann shows in every line that he knows what he is talking about. I doubt if any tuberculosis specialist who ever lived ever gathered together so many facts about that disease and the way it affects human beings. And not only about the disease, but about the human beings as human beings. Here Mann evidently has looked as deeply into the human heart as it is given most novelists to do.

But I confess that there can be too much of a good thing and the second volume, while there was no dropping off of the careful workmanship of a careful literary craftsman, was unfortunately less so. There are two intellectual patients in the book an Italian "humanist" and a German priest. And they talk and talk and talk—20,000 words in a single breath is like child's play to them. They discuss everything on earth and under the earth and they soar up into the clouds of philosophy. It was only one book to read in a whole year's time because there is real substance to these talks, but the average reader is likely to suffer soon from intellectual indigestion.

Thomas Mann is a genius and it is foolish to prescribe for genius, but on the principle that a cat may look at a king, I venture the suggestion that "The Magic Mountain" would have been improved if Mann had thrown half of it away. I for one would have been more eager to go for his other books.

The Question Box

Information on almost any subject can be secured by sending questions to the Post-Crescent Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, director Washington D. C. The bureau does not answer questions pertaining to medicine nor does it express opinions on the merits of stocks and bonds. Send all questions to the Post-Crescent, a self-addressed envelope with your question.

Q. What do signs mean out in the Middle West, when they advocate a 49th State? O. P. N.

A. There is a movement on foot in that part of the country to form another State by combining the city of St. Louis, a section of Illinois, and a section of Iowa.

Q. Will the use of tobacco in any way affect the development of the brilliance or profundity of a mathematical intellect after the age of twenty? W. S. C.

A. The Office of Tobacco Investigation says: "We know of no cases in which an entirely satisfactory answer could be obtained to the question as to affect of tobacco on the brilliance or profundity of a mathematical intellect. It is well known that many of the most brilliant men that the world has produced have been users of tobacco. Whether any of these men have achieved even a modicum of their greatness without tobacco, of course, can not be definitely answered. From the standpoint of the scientist, it would seem that in questions of this sort there is no means of providing the necessary control subjects for purposes of comparison. For example, it is said that Sir Isaac Newton used tobacco freely, but with whom among the non-users of tobacco may Newton be fairly compared for the purpose of obtaining an answer to the question involved?"

Q. Is it true that deer do not have gall bladders? H. C. A.

A. Deer and elk are characterized by the absence of the gall bladder.

Q. When was the first national convention of the Republican and Democratic parties held? A. L. L.

A. There is a Chamber of Commerce in London. The full name and address is—London Chamber of Commerce, Incorporated, 1, 2, and 3 Oxford Court, London, England.

Q. How many feet must be allowed for the landing of airplanes? D. S.

A. The minimum length of a runway, recommended by the Department of Commerce is, generally speaking, 400 feet if the runway has eight directions in which it is possible to land, or 1500 feet if a plane can land in only four directions on the field.

Q. What form of government has Czechoslovakia? D. A. K.

A. It is a democratic Republic.

Q. What was Rembrandt's first name? T. T.

A. His first name was Rembrandt. His full name was Rembrandt Harmannszon van Ryn.

A. He left his entire fortune, $50,000,000, to his wife.

Q. What is the correct name for the children's game known as mumble-peg? G. K.

A. Mumble-peg is correct, also mumble-the-peg. The latter is probably the older designation for the game, and is descriptive of the penalty of the loser, who must pull a peg from the ground with his teeth.

Q. In practicing dry farming, is an attempt made to train crops to grow with little moisture? R. F.

A. Nature's demands are fixed. Dry farming addresses itself to the problem of saving the rain that falls and of seeing that the roots of useful plants, not weeds, get it.

A. The Henry Phipps Institute is an institution founded by Henry Phipps of Pittsburgh, Pa., for "the study, treatment, and prevention of tuberculosis."

Q. How should a fishhook be removed that has been caught in the flesh? D. N.

A. When the barbed end of a fishhook has entered the flesh, do not attempt to remove it by pulling it directly out. Depress the shank of the hook, put the point forward and upward, bringing it out on the surface at another point. The barbed end is then cut off with a wire cutter or a pair of pliers.

Q. How many gallstones have been removed from a patient? P. H.

A. The number may be very great, 7500 having been reported in one case.

Q. Is the burning of oil and gas wells in some degree responsible for the flood? J. D. N.

A. The burning of the gas and oil puts every gallon of oil burned there is added about a gallon of water to the air. Yet even this is negligible, so far as making rain is concerned, since the burning of a thousand million barrels of oil would produce only enough water to cover a bare one hundredth of an inch of rainfall over the United States alone. Our floods are not made that way.

Q. How many people have attended the funeral of D. N.

A. The number may be very great, 7500 having been reported in one case.

DAILY HINTS FOR HEALTH

MANY FACTORS COMBINE TO CAUSE INSANITY

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBURN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

More and more medical scientists are adopting the view that the causes of mental diseases are not in most instances single causes, such as seem to be proved in relation to infectious disease, but rather represent the results of many factors working simultaneously upon the human body.

These factors include the hereditary structure of the individual concerned, the functions of the various glands of internal secretion, the results of alcohol either in the patient or his parents, the results of other infections, and finally mental strain coming from the environment.

Individual Study
This signifies, of course, that the person with mental disturbance cannot be placed in a cast iron case for treatment, but that every individual must be studied as an individual if just himself to the facts.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Svan

New York—Scattered notes from a day's ramble in Manhattan: Broadway giving the silkworms a rest. By which we mean they're going around with bare legs this summer. And those girls with beach tan legs. Even in a day when we're more or less accustomed to legs of all varieties, they attract attention. Now there's Lottie Schoemmel, for instance, going along the "big street" brown as a couple of Indians.

A crowd gathered in front of a bird store. All staring into a coop filled with pigeons. Birds and humans with that crazed look. And a bum on the outskirts of the crowd, whining out his parading spiel. "Mister can you give a buddy a dime for a cuppa coffee?" And, just down the street, another crowd gathered around the pigeons of the public library stairway. Scores with bags of crumbs.

And another bum, whining, "Can't ya help a fella to get sompoun to eat?" On, well.

And the pet store on Seventh avenue with a big window sign telling you that you can

SCHUMANN-HEINK TO SING FOR LEGION MEN

Great Diva Will Make Farewell Appearance in Wisconsin on July 17

Christine Schumann Heink will make her farewell Wisconsin appearance at the Fischer Theatre, Fond du Lac, Tuesday, July 17, under the auspices of the American Legion drum corps of that city.

The great diva will arrive at Fond du Lac about 9:30 in the morning and will be greeted at the railroad station by the corps in full uniform as well as by representatives of all civic and music clubs of the city, uniformed police, city officials, and Legion officials. She will be escorted to the Hotel Belknap with very civic and military honor that the city can muster and will rest there during the afternoon.

Her last Wisconsin concert, which will be presented in the evening and in which she will be accompanied by a group of assisting artists will be given for the benefit of the drum corps of that city.

R. E. Kraemer, business manager of the Fond du Lac drum corps, obtained Schumann-Heink for the concert. Frank Schneller, Neenah, has promised his cooperation for the event as well as Ferdinand Hirz, director of the corps, who has come from his district into the Sixth to help the corps keep arrangements.

ROYALTY REFUND IS WORRYING TAX BODY

Asks Attorney General if They Will Have to Pay Back Taxes

Madison—(P)—The state tax commission has asked the attorney general if it must refund several hundred thousand dollars collected on incomes derived from royalties on patents and copyrights.

A recent decision by the United States supreme court, in a case from another state, held that patent royalties might not be taxed. It is generally assumed that the same ruling will apply on royalties derived from the sale of copyright books and works of art.

What the tax body wants to know from the legal department is whether the federal court's ruling applies to the tax laws of Wisconsin.

If the attorney general believes they do, only the commission would have to specify for how many years the refund should be made, whether it should go back to 1911, or stop with 1921.

The latter question, have, of course, considerable importance attached to it in that the answer will determine the amount of refunds, if any.

No estimate has been compiled by the tax commission of the probable amount of refunds, because it will be necessary to gather statistics from each of the 29 district collectors. The figure for Dane co alone has been estimated at approximately $100,000.

Women Admit Handicap But Ridicule Charge That They Are Not Mans Equal

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of three articles discussing the theory of Dr. Adolf Heilborn, German scientist, that women are not human beings but a mere link between man and ape.

Elmira, N. Y. — Now comes Dr. Frederick Lent, president of Elmira College, oldest college for women in the United States, to take a hand in this woman-is-she-human controversy, as started by Dr. Adolf Heilborn, German anthropologist, who says very decidedly that she is not, but is merely a freak, a semi-half way 'twixt human and animal.

Dr. Lent admits that women have made no great stir in the world of science, art, in general public achievement. But he meets this fact with this remark:

"Is it because women do not have as much ability as men? Is it because they do not wish to enter upon these careers? No. It is because they have been told from time immemorial that they are not fit for them. They have not been educated for them."

Then Dr. Lent fires this at Dr. Heilborn:

"The place of power — But woman holds the place of power, the supreme place, in the world."

Dr. Lent proceeds to exhibit a few of the gifted girls of history to prove his point.

"The first woman, Eve, was a real person," says Dr. Lent. "Beside her, Adam is colorless. It was she who took the initiative and led Adam by the nose. She was made from his whole back-bone because he seems to have none left."

Sarah, he pointed out, was more powerful than Abraham, much more dominating throughout the Hagar incident than Abraham. It was she who gave polygamy a mortal blow.

Compared with Rebecca, says Dr. Lent, Isaac was almost a nonentity. He was always a child who never grew up, who liked to gorge himself and be coddled.

"He probably called his wife 'Mama' and she comforted him after his mother's death. How she did manage him! He was spineless."

STRONG CHARACTER

"Jezebel was the original girl who had a little curl right in the middle of her forehead, and when she was good — only Jezebel never was. But she was forceful, to say the least. Measured against her stature, her husband was nothing but a sulky, weak, indecisive character."

Dr. Lent asks everyone to remember that these women lived in an age in which their sphere was exceedingly restricted. They were not regarded as men's equals. And yet even they exerted the moral leadership, though only men were counted as the links in the chain of life.

Then Dr. Lent asks this one — "With all this power of leadership why should a woman have to wait for someone to ask her to marry him? Why should she not have the same right to look for a good husband that a man has to look for a wife?"

"Speaking of marriage, do women really want to succeed in the world outside the home? After they fundamentally more at ease and efficient in the world inside — the home because they are happier there? If they would succeed in business they must have a greater desire to do so than they now have, and both men and women must be taught that a woman can marry and have children and still succeed in other lines."

HAS EQUAL RIGHTS

"If the myth of woman's intellectual inferiority has been exploded, the same educational rights must be given women as men. Even if every opening for careers outside the home were closed, the road for women's colleges would still exist for it is as wide and open to the educated woman today as it was to the educated man in the prehistoric sphere of usefulness."

"Going back to the beginning, women lived in a state of freedom because of lack of ability, but because of lack of ability, they were not regarded as men's equals. And yet even they exerted the moral leadership, though only men were counted as the links in the chain of life."

Then Dr. Lent asks this one — "With all this power of leadership why should a woman have to wait for someone to ask her to marry him? Why should she not have the same right to look for a good husband that a man has to look for a wife?"

Estate Sought By Emerich Heirs Valued At Millions

Value of the fortune which heirs of John Nicholas Emerich, pioneer merchant trader, and fur dealer of New York, are fighting to recover from the John Jacob Astor estate will range between $500,000,000 and $1,000,000,000, according to information uncovered by alleged heirs of Mr. Emerich at Madison.

Mrs. Christina Campbell, 202 N. Union-st., Appleton, and Mrs. Hattie E. Hayton, with whom Mrs. Campbell is living, expect to share in the estate if their suit is successful. Mrs. Hayton and Mrs. Campbell have spent many years trying to locate documents which will help prove their case.

It is alleged by the heirs of Mr. Emerich that when the pioneer merchant died in December, 1816, he left his estate in trust to John Jacob Astor, then his partner, for 90 years. At the end of 90 years the money was to be divided among the descendants of Mr. Emerich's two brothers, Christopher and Valentine.

The reason for this strange will, it is said by the heirs, was to deprive the two brothers, with whom John had quarrelled, from sharing in the vast fortune.

When Mr. Emerich died he had more than $1,000,000 in cash, considerable property in New York city, some land in the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania and property in Baltimore and Washington, D. C.

A document owned by Mrs. Bellamy Seals, Madison, one of the direct descendants of the brothers of John Emerich, revealed the above information. From these same documents it was learned that there are 450 living persons at present who can actually prove their relationship to the two brothers while there are close to 1,500 others who believe they are descendants.

According to the documents held by Mrs. Seals, Mr. Emerich had the following property when he died in addition to a cash fortune estimated over $1,000,000:

1. Thirty-five acres of land in New York city on which are now located the Trinity Episcopal church in the heart of the Wall Street district; St. Paul's church, and the Astor House. This land was purchased from the English government.
2. Three hundred and fourteen acres of land in Germantown for which he paid one shilling an acre.
3. Sixteen blocks in Baltimore and several lots in Washington.
4. Four thousand acres of property in the anthracite coal regions of Berks co., Pa., for which he also paid one shilling an acre.

When Conrad Emerich, father of the three Emerich boys, died in Germany he willed some of his property to John and the income from this estate was paid into the John Emerich estate for years, heirs say.

The New York City property is worth several millions of dollars today and the other city properties also are worth many millions.

According to terms of John Nicholas Emerich's will, heirs to his estate were to be advertised for every ten years until found. Five of those advertisements appeared in a St. Louis, Mo., newspaper in 1911 and later they were seen in 1899 and 1909. The true agreement ended in 1904.

The present suit, which has been brought by Wisconsin heirs of Mr. Emerich, will not be the first time the matter has been in court. Twenty years ago the case was heard in

"SCARLET DOVE"

When to love is to flirt with death is the story told in the Tiffany-Stahl production, "The Scarlet Dove," which opens a 5 day engagement at the Elks Theatre today. The story, which was written and directed by Arthur Grieg, whose own career has been more interesting than any fiction he can create, has as its heroine a young Russian girl, whose pure white uprightness is being sold by a worldly and cunning American. The story is a masterpiece of suspense and drama, and is a masterpiece of the art of the screen.

With a great deal of suspense, frequent thrills and many heart rending scenes, the picture is a masterpiece of the art of the screen. The story is a masterpiece of suspense and drama, and is a masterpiece of the art of the screen.

"LOVE ME AND THE WORLD IS MINE"

Dazzling in its atmospheric splendor, throbbing with drama and inspiring with the artistry of direction, "Love Me and the World is Mine," the Universal production at Fischer's Appleton Theatre today and tomorrow, is truly one of the important milestones in motion picture achievement.

All of the promise of "Valentino" is at great cost, and the picture is a masterpiece of the art of the screen. The story is a masterpiece of suspense and drama, and is a masterpiece of the art of the screen.

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

Continuing the subject of pre-empting bids, we next come to the most important one of the entire lot, and yet one which is neglected more than any other type of pre-empt. I refer to the jump of an initial No Trump after a pass by Second Hand.

Mary Bridge players who are not making high pre-empting bids as the Dealer seems justified and the other two No Trumps agree to a contract, they also are apt to start by a jump bid, but, no matter what assistance they may have for the No Trump, never think of turning partner's initial bid into a No Trump into a pre-emptive bid by jumping it to two after the other has passed.

The success of a No Trump contract depends upon which suit the adversary who has traded decides to lead. If he could see a contract made, he frequently would lead the suit of the trump, which, however, would be a most unsound lead from the point of view of the leader's cards. But when Fourth Hand has two of a suit after Dealer has bid one No Trump and Second and Third Hand have passed, and Dealer or his partner has bid two No Trumps, marked because a No Trump is generally better than a suit, it is a contract which is not to be taken lightly. It is a contract which is not to be taken lightly. It is a contract which is not to be taken lightly.

There is some danger in the jump because Second Hand may have passed with a solid suit and his lead may defeat two No Trumps where one No Trump easily could have been made; but this danger merely involves a loss of points, not of games, and the jump does not frequently produces games by depriving the leader of the information that his partner's lead-directing bid otherwise would have furnished.

Next Monday I shall give examples of hands with which the pre-empting of two No Trumps should be made over partner's initial one No Trump. (Copyright John F. Dale Co.)

Doughty Kaukauna Manager Socks Ball Over Fence and Sends in Four Runs

Kaukauna—Led by Manager Les Smith, "Babe Ruth" of the valley league, the Kaw nine Sunday afternoon pulled a league game from the fire triumphed over the Neenah-Menasha squad 11 to 5.

Smith's home run in the sixth inning, with three holding the bases, sent in four runs which took the lead from the short end of a 5 to 4 score and placed them in the lead with a three run advantage. In the next inning the Smithmen followed up their attack, scoring three more runs and clinching the game. Powell twirler for the Pails, seemed to lose strength and he was replaced in the eighth inning by Shawano.

The Neenah squad started off with a bang when Weissgerber, Pail shortstop, slammed out a circuit clout in the first inning, scoring two of his team mates ahead of him. They lost the lead in the next inning when the Kawmen solved Powell's heaves for three runs.

Scoring again in the fourth and fifth innings the Menashans again took the lead only to lose it and the game when Les Smith put one over the fence. Lewandoski, Menasha center fielder, also knocked out a home run, the third of the game.

The Kawmen gathered 11 hits and the Menashans were not far behind with 9.

Gerrits, regular Kaw second baseman, was unable to play Sunday because of sickness. Moore, who usually plays in the field, held the second sack in a nice manner while Kilgas, reserve catcher, played in center field position.

Kaukauna will play the Kimberly-Little Chute team, leaders of the valley loop, at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at Little Chute. This promise to be an exciting fray.

NEW KAUKAUNA DAM
READY FOR SERVICE

Kaukauna—The new dam built across the head of the canal near the Chicago and North Western railroad shops by the Meyers Construction, Oshkosh, for the city was completed last week, according to a report by T. D. Levelyn, foreman. Workmen are now removing the old piers of the former dam. Work was started on the new dam about the middle of April.

Six large steel gates in the new dam regulate the flow of water in the canal which feeds the plant where the Kaukauna Electric department generates its power. The gates are raised or lowered with the aid of a small motor car on a track which allows it to be moved from one gate to the other. The dam proper is made of concrete.

After the ceremonies, the ladies of the congregation served supper to 600 people at the church and in the evening a large crowd attended the card party in the basement of the church. The school building, which is to cost approximately $100,000, is expected to be finished by the beginning of the fall school term.

Social Items

Kaukauna—About 50 people attended the annual Handel reunion Sunday afternoon and evening at the Tourist park. Dinner and supper were served. Locken of West Bend and Mr. and Mrs. E. Albright and daughter of Appleton.

The value of the plant was increased during April by $7,972.43 and the total investment to the end of April was $439,529.34. The net income for April was $25,147.98 and the operating expenses were $20,879.48, leaving a net operating surplus of $4,268.51.

"KEY MEN" DISCLAIM
ALL CONNECTION WITH
"BLACKLIST" CHARGES

Say They Are Just Analysts and That All Responsibility Ends There

New York—"The Key Men of America" is a bureau of information dealing with the forces and agencies seeking to destroy our form of government and set up one purely socialistic.

This is the reply of Fred R. Marvin, head of the "Key Men," to attacks on his concern in connection with the "blacklist" controversy raging within the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The "Key Men" came in for fresh blasts from supporters of Mrs. Helen Tutts Baile of Boston when her expulsion edict to the D. A. R. "Continental Congress" and perhaps to the courts, reiterated in effect that the "Key Men" prompted the D. A. R. in banning widely known "liberals" as speakers at its meetings.

ISSUE STILL EXISTS

The matter of the "use of blacklists of persons and organizations" will not end with the expulsion order, but will continue an open issue when Mrs. Baile appeals, the lawyer, George W. Alger, declared. "It will be open for members of the society to decide whether they want the blacklist system to continue," he said.

High officials of the D. A. R. have denied the existence of a "blacklist" system within the organization.

"Our daily data sheets, which describe the activities of individuals and institutions, are based on information which I and others associated with me have been assembling and collecting for 30 years," Marvin said.

"In them we publish the names of men and institutions identified with socialistic or communistic movements.

They are out blacklists. We merely sift evidence and analyze motives." Marvin apparently is about the "whole works" of the "Key Men." There is no membership. The concern's stationery lists about 50 persons as forming an "advisory council," but many of these have said it was Marvin who conferred this honor on them and that they performed few if any duties. The council apparently never meets.

The "daily data sheets" are sent by mail to anyone who is sufficiently interested to pay $2 a year for them. They often contain wordy denunciations of persons and organizations identified with present-day "liberalism." Some unique philosophizing also is done.

"There has grown up in our colleges a new, alleged science called sociology, which is but another name for Socialism," one of the data sheets reads.

The Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Federal Council of Churches and the American Federation of Labor are among organizations which seem to have come under Marvin's suspicion. Nearly all peace organizations are listed.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Jane Addams, Clarence Darrow, Dr. David Starr Jordan, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Norman Hapgood and scores of other noted individuals are enumerated.

"The daily data sheets are inscribed: 'Dealing with radical and subversive movements.'"

Reports are that a Jewish blacksmith at Haifa recently sold his daughter, aged 10, for $150 to a Moslem Arab tradesman of Acre as a bride for the buyer's fourteen-year-old son.

SUNDAY'S RESULTS

Green Bay 5, Appleton 0	Fond du Lac 5, Kaukauna 1
Kimberly-Little Chute 8, Neenah-Menasha 1

Old Dutch Brautigam put his ball team through its daily dozen Sunday afternoon in Brandt park and when the afternoon's exercises were over, the team had just as good a chance as the home folks were content in the fact they had seen a good ball game, that is, after the second inning. Green Bay, the opponent for the afternoon, won the fracas by an 8 to 3 count.

Dutch himself was the big gun in the Appleton attack, the veteran choosing to play short. He was last year's champion and a week ago, besides fielding a perfect game, the alderman from the Fourth ward got a three bagger with the sacks populated and drove in his team's only runs. His work Sunday should convince Dutch he ought to play a few more games this season even if it is hard work.

Rachel, lanky Green Bay pitcher was the big noise on the Bay nine. He allowed 10 hits but in only three innings were they bunched and then his mates rose to the occasion and helped put down the uprising. He contributed three hits to the Bay score, a single, double and a home run over the right field fence. His blows accounted for half his team's scores, three runs he drove over the plate and the fourth, the one he made unaided.

Ruffke started on the mound for Appleton but the mite right hander had lost his cunning somewhere between home and the park so he took to the bench after Rachel's home run in the third. Ritten, Brautigam's new southpaw then took up the burden and he proved to be having a big day under the broiling sun allowing only two hits and walking four. He also struck out eight men and was in the only one in the seventh when three walks made things look bad. He pulled out, however, with being scored on.

Appleton made a gesture at scoring in the first inning when Brautigam hit a lot one at Clark, playing third for the Bays, and then dashed to third on Van Wyck's double. The two did on the sacks when Murphy failed to produce a hit.

Two singles and a sacrifice bunt, two more singles and a sacrifice fly caused Reffke to wish he'd been given the afternoon off in the second inning. Clusman, first up singled, Kirkoff did likewise and when Lewellen, second base, and Ashman made no attempt at a play all hands were safe. Rachel then singled scoring Clusman and Kirkoff. Clark followed suit and Lewellen put the third counter over. Boehm obliging struck out but Rachel scored on E. Becker's long sacrifice fly to Van Wyck. Walkers then uncorried a two bagger, permit Clark to score and Glick ended the inning by grounding to Torrow.

After two were away in the third, inning the Bays started another assault on Reffke when Lewellen singled and trotted the rest of the way on Rachel's clout in the general direction of first. Line ended. Reffke and Ritten with his left hand slants ambled to the mound. He walked Clark, the first man to face him but struck out Boehm to end the inning.

Appleton's bid for runs came in the fifth when Goshia and Ritten singled, Schultz walked and Brautigam hit one to deep center and chased the three men in by springing to third base. Dutch's marzhan was an afternoon's work in itself but he made the dash standing up.

The Bay's last counter came in the seventh when Ritten forgot the location of the plate. He walked Becker, struck out Walker and then passed Glick and Clusman. Becker scored on Kirkoff's single to Torrow who passed to Brautigam to get Clusman. Dutch

YANKS TAKE TWO FROM ATHLETICS; LOU HOMERS TWICE

Cardinals Break Even in Afternoon's Work With Pittsburgh Pirates

While the Yankees lead their closest rivals the American League by 13½ games, and the Cards are ahead in the National by 3½, most of the other clubs are battling desperately for positions as close to the leaders as can be secured. The standings, from second place down, show one or more shifts almost daily and threaten to continue to do so until the final curtain is rung down.

In the American League, only 12½ games separate Detroit in last place from Philadelphia in second. In the National the Giants, in runnerup position, lead the Pittsburgh Pirates in sixth by ½½ games.

The Yankees Sunday removed what doubt, if any, remained as to their ability to beat the Athletics just about as often as they want to. Both ends of a double header went to the champions, 12 to 6 and 8 to 4. Lou Gehrig hit two home runs in the first game, his seventeenth and eighteenth of the season, and Tony Lazzeri duplicated the feat in the nightcap. Henry Johnson and Waite Hoyt were the winning pitchers.

The St. Louis Browns failed to take advantage of this double reverse for the Athletics for they permitted Detroit to score five runs in the eighth inning and a 7 to 4 triumph at Detroit.

George Burns' homer with two on in the sixth gave Cleveland the victory over the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 2. The Indians announced the unconditional release of Garland Buckeye, mammoth right hander, who has failed to round into form this season.

Boston moved to within a single game of the fourth place Indians by taking Washington into camp twice, 2 to 1 and 7 to 1. Slim Harris and Ed Morris pitched great ball for Bill Carrigan.

The National league program saw the Cardinals end all square after a double header with Donie Bush's Corsairs of Pittsburgh. Fred Russell blanked the Cards in the first game, 2 to 0. The Cards made four errors and were out of the game in the second but pulled it out of the fire, 8 to 6.

Eppa Rixey pitched the Cincinnati Reds back into third place with a 4 to 1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs. Brooklyn dropped into fourth position two points ahead of the Cubs, when the Braves pounded Clark, Moss and McWeeney for 14 hits and nosed out the Robins, to 8 to 7.

APPLETON JUNIORS WIN FROM MENASHA SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Maul Two Pail Pitchers for 18 Hits While Martell Allows Seven

Appleton's future Ty Cobb and Babe Ruths won the first home of the practice period Saturday afternoon at Brandt park when they romped all over the nine representing the Menasha Juniors of the American Legion baseball league. The score was 18 and 7, Martell of the local nine allowing only seven hits.

Besides pitching like a veteran Martell found time to get five hits in six times to the plate. He also found the Menasha batsmen much to be feared and struck seven of them. He was playing left field for the Appleton nine who came in for a share of his team's glory to his general and good game.

Menasha started the scoring in the first inning with three runs and got two more in the second. The best Appleton did in the game was to tie the score in the sixth and seventh innings.

Martell buckled down to business after the Menasha uprising and as he sailed along like a veteran his mates stepped out and scored two runs in the fourth, one in the sixth and two in the seventh inning. Seven runs contributed the latter seven runs which clinched the game.

The district meet to decide a champion will get under way this week with teams from Appleton, Neenah, Green Bay, Goodman and Kimberly competing. The dinner will represent the district in a state tournament. The first game will be played in Brandt park at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon against Seymour.

Hennessey, setting his ground strokes under good control, made a long delivery good in the fourth game of the first set to even the score. Cochet's service was good at first, but in the fifth ball the American raced all over the court to retrieve his opponent's sharply angled drives, once he had again after a hard battle in the sixth game. The count went 4-4 and Hennessey pulled out his own drive in the eighth game after Cochet had frequently came to the net for his full volleys.

The "Follow Through"

The "follow through" is just as important in advertising as it is in golf! For example, if you have merchandise for sale, the first thing you do is to bring it before the buying public of Appleton and vicinity by means of a Post-Crescent Advertisement. Of course, you fully describe the articles, and paint just as attractive a word-picture of it as is possible, for you must not only arouse interest, but inspire ACTION in the minds of the prospective buyer.

Now for the "follow through": It is possible that all the people who are in the market for merchandise such as yours are not in a position to talk business the first day your ad appears—so unless you "follow through" with at least an ad every week, you are not receiving the greatest possible benefit from your advertisement.

If you think there is one chance in 14,538 of finding a buyer in this County, just

Bird-Houses

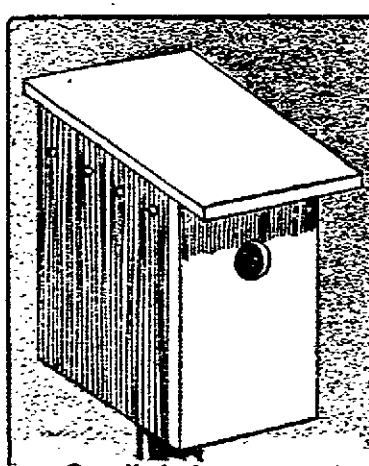

There are many kinds of bird-houses, varying with the species of birds for which they are built. In making your measurements be sure to choose lumber that is thick so it will not warp. Allow spaces for cleaning through the side, top or bottom. Sit down and make a working sketch of the house before building. One model is shown above.

This house with its tiny opening would be excellent for a house wren. Be sure your bird house will keep out the rain.

Small holes must be made near the roof for ventilation. If you are making the house for several families of birds, divide it into floors.

The entrances should vary in size according to the birds that frequent your yard, as follows: blue birds, tree-swallows and woodpeckers, 2 inches; chickadees and Carolina wrens, 1 1/8 inches; house wrens, 7/8 inch; house finches and crested fly-catchers, 2 inches. For robins and barn swallows, one or more sides should be open.

DRY LAW ENFORCERS DON'T LIKE BANNING OF 'GOSSIP' EVIDENCE

State Commissioner Does not Agree With Officers Who Are Complaining

Madison—(AP)—The state supreme court's recent ruling, eliminating hearsay evidence as sufficient grounds for issuance of warrants against alleged liquor law violators, is a handicap in enforcing the law, according to expressions of opinion given R. W. Dixon, state prohibition commissioner, by several district attorneys and other enforcement officials throughout the state.

In this view, Mr. Dixon does not entirely concur. While recognizing that it may delay arrests in many cases, he feels it provides a definite course which officers may follow, and clarifies the problem of what does constitute evidence for obtaining a warrant on "gossip," that is, if a citizen reports to him certain individuals are understood to be selling liquor, such hearsay evidence does not suffice. The complainant must make a sworn affidavit that to his or her personal knowledge the law is being violated.

Upon such affidavit, a warrant may be issued, and the affidavit becomes a part of the issuing court's permanent record.

One district attorney has written Mr. Dixon that he considers the ruling altogether favorable to the law violator. "Soon there will be no way of doing anything to the dear bootleggers and moonshiners," he wrote. "Of course the court is strictly and entirely right, as anyone must have known who dug into the question. But where are we now?"

Mr. Dixon pointed out that his department, and the officers with whom it cooperates, now know just exactly what they can do, and what they cannot do, in the matter of search warrants.

Previously we have been caught between what the courts permitted us to do and what people expected us to do," he said. "With the supreme court's ruling before us, we can inform people who tell us of violations that the only course open to them is to file affidavit setting forth their exact knowledge of what violations have been committed. People who are unwilling to make such sworn affidavits have no cause to complain that enforcement officials are not performing their duty."

STUDY PROBLEMS OF WORKERS AT CONFAB

Roschub Is Chairman of Committee That Will Have Charge of Meeting

Judson G. Roschub is chairman of the committee in charge of the eleventh annual conference on Human Relations in Industry at College Car, Lake Geneva, July 5, 6, and 7, under the auspices of the industrial department of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Roschub will preside at all sessions of the conference.

The aim of the conference is to establish practical ideas, wholesome leadership and potential influences. On Thursday the session will open with a discussion on "Foremanship Training". Other topics are "Wage Assignments", "Employee Representations", "Vocational Schools", "Labor Turnover", "Group Insurance," and "Old Age Pensions."

Each year an increasing number of delegates bring their families. It is expected that because the conference immediately follows a holiday, many families will be present at the conference. The camp guest organization have charge of the day's program, which includes fireworks and an illuminated boat parade on the evening of July 4. A women's building is the social center of the camp and a nursery and kindergarten are conducted under capable leaders in a special children's building.

An eighteen-hole golf course, thirteen tennis courts, a fleet of rowboats and a completely equipped athletic field for baseball, volleyball and other events are among the recreational activities offered.

First Aid For Tourists Told In Handy Booklet

A handy booklet of first aid facts for avoiding and treating accidents or illness on the summer tour has been compiled by the Washington Information Bureau of the Appleton Post-Crescent. A copy will be mailed to any reader for 6 cents in stamps or coin.

A concerted effort is being made this year by the United States Public Health Service, the American Red Cross, and the American Automobile Association to make the summer vacation, and especially the motor tour, a safe form of recreation and travel. This effort applies not merely to safety on the road, but to advising the vacationist about the selection of healthful camp sites, pure drinking water, and other sanitary requirements, and to extending general first aid information.

Drownings, falls, fires, and miscellaneous wounds take a great toll each year in life and suffering, as do traffic accidents. The vacation ought to be a period for gaining health and strength, and these benefits need not be imperilled by the special dangers of the outing season, if people adequately prepare themselves. To this end the special first aid booklet gives a volume of valuable information.

In the direct line of first aid to the injured it tells how to treat wounds, fractures, burns, and other troubles; how to revive the drowned, and special things to do in cases of emergencies. Of equal importance are its rules for purifying water supply, disposal of refuse, care of fires, and other outlying information.

Lists are also provided of proper material for the medical or first aid kit which ought to be in every motorist's tool box. The whole subject of the safe vacation is condensed into 4 pages of simple facts and instructions. Every reader may secure a copy of the "First Aid" booklet by writing to the Appleton Post-Crescent Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C., and enclosing 6 cents in stamps or coin to cover postage and handling cost.

WANT STATE TAX ON OUTDOOR BILLBOARDS

Federation of Women's Clubs Sees Chance of Revenue in New Plan

A demand that billboards be taxed was placed before the Outdoor Advertising company at its five day conference which started Monday at Madison by 100 members of the Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs committee on outdoor art and billboard restriction.

Mr. Arthur Courtenay Neville, Green Bay, chairman of the committee, argues that taxation of billboards would lessen advertising on the landscape, would increase the safety of the roads, and would increase the state's income.

She said that when the club women of the state urge restriction of billboards it does not mean elimination of outdoor advertising but it does mean restriction to commercial districts, leaving the beauty of the country side to the people to whom it properly belongs.

"We tax the automobile, the driver, and in most states, the gasoline," she says. "Why not the billboards? Billboards derive their value as advertising by public expenditure. After the state has expended $50,000 or more per mile to convert a dirt road into an improved highway, traffic is immediately attracted, and signs follow the traffic."

On behalf of her committee, Mrs. Neville addressed an open letter to President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin and asked cooperation of the university, which has a department for research on outdoor advertising, in the campaign.

STAMP COLLECTOR WANTS TROPHY OF COMING AIR MEET

Stamp collectors are always on the job. It seems that no occasion, however slight or far away, whereby they might add to their collection, is allowed to pass by.

A short time ago agitation was started to secure an air meet and airport dedication here in August and a collector at Galesburg, Ill., heard about it.

He wrote a letter to Kenneth Corbett, secretary of the chamber of commerce, enclosing a ten cent air mail stamp with the request that the stamp, cancelled, be returned to him in case the local post master decided to secure a special stamp canceller to help advertise the event.

GREEN BAY WORKING ON SMOKE ABATEMENT

Appleton Chamber of Commerce Finds Other Cities Considering Same Project

Appleton is not the only Fox river valley city planning action toward the abatement of the smoke nuisance, according to word received by Kenneth Corbett, secretary of the chamber of commerce, from the secretary of the chamber at Green Bay.

An extensive study of the cause and effect of excessive smoke has been made in that city, according to the letter.

The Green Bay people feel that any attempt at legislation would not be proper at this time but that an appeal should be made to manufacturers and others whose plants are causing the trouble. Considerable data on the subject has been gathered there and was sent to Mr. Corbett, who will turn it over to the welfare committee. The communication invited Mr. Corbett and others who might be interested in the project to visit Green Bay and talk over the situation.

CORRECT DEFECTIVE SPEECH AND HEARING

School Board Clerk Says
$4,500 Has Been Expended for That Purpose in Year

About $4,500 has been expended during the past year to aid school children with defective speech, according to Miss Carrie Morgan, clerk of the school board. The children are taught by a traveling teacher, Miss Anna Sullivan, who helps them overcome deficiencies in pronunciation and the pronunciation of certain block syllables. They are not segregated in a special class but are visited by her in their regular grades.

Nine children with defective hearing were taught during the year at a cost of $2,500. Miss Ida Gleason is their teacher. According to Miss Morgan, there are no dumb children and those with defective hearing can be taught to talk intelligently.

By a new law which went into effect this year, the city pays $70 for each of these children and the state pays the remainder. In former years the state bore practically the entire cost.

R. J. White and J. T. Ciespke left Saturday afternoon for the White cottage on Berry Lake.

OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

writes about children for

The Appleton Post-Crescent

As an exclusive feature in The Post-Crescent, Mrs. Olive Roberts Barton, known to women the world over for her daily editorials, is writing a daily article on child training. Here she combines her experience as a teacher, mother and child psychologist with those pleasant progressive philosophies which made her famous as an editorialist.

Mrs. Barton, who in her particular field of newspaper writing has won as much success as her sister, Mary Roberts Rinehart, realizes as every parent does that properly training a child for a start in this complex civilization is a science and she realizes also that science is successful only in its common sense applications; that human nature, unlike method doesn't change.

Truth and frankness are the bases of her sound advice to parents. Back of successful character and habit training is good health, so child health is given full attention by Mrs. Barton. The care of young children also is considered. Mothers, prospective mothers and fathers will want to follow these authentic and readable articles.
